Invitation to the Conference

To International Organizations

Engaging in the formation of a new international security system based on a Social and Solidarity Economy

We highly appreciate the UN for recognizing a new civilizational path of world development, embodied in the Sustainable Development Goals and Common Agenda.

We respect the ILO, which has over 100 years of history as a tripartite organization with the goal of maintaining the security of market relations and reducing the risks of social conflict.

We believe that the UN Interagency Working Group will succeed in building the Social and Solidarity Economy, and we hope that our contribution will be understood and supported.

Taking into account the experience of the UN, the ILO and the achievements of the UN Interagency Working Group, we initiate the establishment of a new international organization, the viability and effectiveness of which is based on a three-dimensional architecture of institutions: (a) the Institute of the International Trade Union Movement (which owns the digital institutional platform); (b) the Institute of Interstate Partnership; (c) the Institute of a digital financial and banking system.

These institutions are global, and their combination creates the institutional integrity necessary for the deployment of the Social and Solidarity Economy in which global-level justice and security are ensured by the pursuit of individual elements for their individual security, justice, and development.

Recovery from today's global crisis and further sustainable development require a new system of international security. Security built on an economy of arms/disarmament, a system of fear, suffering and the right of the strongest is now crumbling under the influence of innovation and global inclusion. National security cannot be achieved without solving global problems and ensuring inclusive sustainable development.

This means that the path to new international security lies in the deployment of the Social and Solidarity Economy capable of overcoming the crisis of global governance, managing innovation, creating new markets and confronting wars, human suffering and planetary threats.

We propose that the UN, the ILO, and the UN Interagency Working Group consider participating in the creation of the International Hub for the Management of Sustainable Development Projects and, on behalf of the Conference Committee, invite you to participate in the Constituent International Conference New International Security System – establishment of the International Hub for the Management of Sustainable Development Projects.

The International Hub for the Management of Sustainable Development Projects can become the executive body for the Sustainable Development Goals and become a UN project.

The Conference program and terms of participation can be found at www.c3n.info.

Kind regards,

Conference Committee
