Invitation to the Conference

To International Trade Unions

Engaging in the formation of a new international security system based on a Social and Solidarity Economy

The Internet and digital innovation have given rise to an IT industry and a new class of IT professionals. Their uniting and joining the trade union movement today creates a new path toward a more just society and international security.

A digital institutional platform, which will be owned and operated by the labor movement, will be the foundation for the deployment of the Social and Solidarity Economy and will provide the necessary resource mobilization and multi-stakeholder collaboration to achieve the 17 Sustainable Development Goals.

Profits from sustainable development projects will form an "International Union BUDGET" and create a new institution of "basic, socially oriented income" based on it. Union members – a nurse, a port worker, a salesman, or a rank-and-file IT specialist – will be able to receive union welfare for their basic material well-being.

Targeted use of these funds will reduce social inequality, create social elevators and a new middle class, stimulate job growth, guarantee social protection and attract new members to the trade union movement.

On behalf of the Conference Committee, we invite trade unions to participate in the Constituent International Conference New International Security System – establishment of the International Hub for the Management of Sustainable Development Projects, which aims to create a new international organization.

The Conference program and terms of participation can be found at www.c3n.info.

Kind regards,
